

A scoping study on the technical and economic feasibility of bio-fuel production in the Northern Cape

The study covered the technical, economic, financial, institutional and environmental feasibility. It also included a value chain analysis of ethanol production from sugar beet in several countries.